

After years of having dinner hours interrupted almost nightly by telemarketers, I have some freedom and control over the fact that my time is not taken up by annoying calls from telemarketers. I would certainly like it to remain this way with no changes in the present system. No one has a right to be so intrusive to me in my home.